

	Blackbird Males are all black with a carrot coloured beak. Females are brown.  Photo: Neil Fletcher		Blue Tit Cheeky little birds with a yellow front, blue back and black stripe across the eye.  Photo: Bob Eade
	Chaffinch Males are pink with a blue head and a white flash on the wings. Females are brown.  Photo: Nigel Symington		Coal Tit Small, active bird lacking any bright colours and with a black cap and bib.  Photo: Neil Fletcher
	Collared Dove A dove with, erm, a collar.  Photo: Neil Fletcher		Dunnock Brown on back with a blue grey front. Spends a lot of time on the ground.  Photo: Neil Fletcher
	Goldfinch Red face, yellow wings. Likes to do a lot of twittering.  Photo: Bob Eade		Great Spotted Woodpecker Black and white with a dagger for a beak. Likes peanuts.  Photo: Nicholas Watts
	Great Tit Yellow on front with a black cap and bib.  Photo: Nigel Symington		Green Woodpecker Green with a red cap. Eats ants on the ground.  Photo: Derek Middleton
	Greenfinch Dull green all over with a forked tail.  Photo: Neil Fletcher		House Sparrow Usually in a rowdy gang. Males have a grey cap and a black bib.  Photo: Neil Fletcher

Jackdaw

Small crow, so it's all black but has a greyish head. Usually in pairs.

Photo: Roger Wilmschurst

Jay

Also a crow. But it's pink and blue.

Photo: Neil Fletcher

Long-tailed Tit

Flying lollypop.

Photo: Bob Eade

Magpie

You all know this one.

Photo: Roger Wilmschurst

Nuthatch

Blue back with a black bandit's mask. Can climb down trees.

Photo: Dave Ball

Pied Wagtail

Had a friend who thought these were baby Magpies. They're not.

Photo: Derek Middleton

Robin

It has a red breast. But you probably already knew that.

Photo: James Duncan

Sparrowhawk

Males are blue/grey with a barred chest. Females brown.

Photo: Jonathan Bliss

Song Thrush

Brown back, speckly chest.

Photo: Darin Smith

Starling

Black and shiny with a yellow beak.

Photo: Nigel Symington

Woodpigeon

Grey, pink and chunky with a white bit 'round its neck.

Photo: Roger Wilmschurst

Wren

Like a mouse but with wings. Very small and very active.

Photo: Peter Brooks